Hot Chocolate Mug Cake

Recipe by Caroline Anderson

So, you've got out your mug and are getting ready to make yourself a delicious cup of Woodhouse Hot Chocolate, but realize that what you are really in the mood for right now is cake. No problem! You can turn that mix into a chocolatey cake-in-a-cup in a matter of minutes!! Just a microwave and a few staples you undoubtedly have in the house are needed to achieve the ultimate warm treat.

3 tbsp Butter
pinch salt
3 tbsp milk
1 tsp vanilla extract
1 tbsp white sugar
1 tbsp brown Sugar
1/3 cup flour
½ tsp baking powder
¼ cup Woodhouse Dark Hot Chocolate Mix

In a mug that is on the larger side (this will help avoid an overflow later) place the butter and pinch of salt and microwave until melted.

Remove the mug from the microwave and add the sugars, milk, and vanilla and stir until combined. Add flour, baking powder, and hot chocolate mix, and stir until combined.

If you've added the ingredients in a timely manner, it will slightly melt the hot chocolate mix; you want this. Microwave the cake for 90 seconds. The cake will rise but will immediately fall when the time is up, this is expected. Wait for cake to cool and enjoy!
